Vendui Elggur,

It is unfortunate I must resort to this barbaric tongue sigh It has no nuances of tone or inflection.

I have a proposal for you.

It is true I am recruiting for my organisation.

It is also true that I will have a force very adept at hunting down those who require assassination...

BUT

I also require a special force. The renor kyorl you shall be known as.
The Black Guard. It is no secret I have no liking for that yeunn ma'lai Kaden Marsden. It is you who will seek an opportunity to do something permanent about the good Captain. I may have more for you in the future.

For now.. watch, wait and seek your opportunity.
Like a spider in the shadows. So shall you strike!

As to the recruitment..

There are three different tests I will offer. You shall not know which is coming, so you will be ready for all three. The type of test you will know by the spiders you see at the secret location we will go to.

These from the North will indicate the competition will be a "Grand Melee". One in, all in. Last one standing alive will be the winner of the day and my newest recruit. Or have earned further favour if they have won before, of course. Dro'xundus de'lil alurl so they say. "Survival of the fittest".

These will indicate an individual competition, a duel to the death in rounds. The winner each round goes through to the next. All have only one chance. Noa lueth tlu zet rathrea "Lose and be left behind". A stone wall will mark the start of the rounds. There will be no interference from the crowd, or disruption of those fighting or among the watchers. If there should be you will not be welcome back or ever be admitted to my ranks. I need no trouble from you. Finally, these will indicate the competition will be pairs. You and a partner of your choice will fight another pair. In order to win, both of them should be dead, both of you standing alive. Simple, but more difficult. Again, I will tolerate no disruption from the crowd amongst yourselves or towards those in the fight. A stone wall will again denote the start. I will be less impressed should one be resurrecting the other at the end. The goal is to keep each other alive and see your opponents are killed.

Ul'naus udos sslig'ne
"Together we defend".

When the spiders have been defeated, the competition above can commence.

Bwael ap'zen renor kyorl!

Good Luck!

Barra Linath.

May you never hear the shadows sing for thee.
